SAVE YOUR LIFE:

Get Care for These POST-BIRTH Warning Signs

Most women who give birth recover without problems. But any woman can have complications after giving birth. Learning to recognize these POST-BIRTH warning signs and knowing what to do can save your life.

BIRTH
WARNING SIGNS

Call 911

if you have:

- Pain in chest
- Obstructed breathing or shortness of breath
- Seizures
- Thoughts of hurting yourself or someone else

Call your healthcare provider

if you have:

(If you can't reach your healthcare provider, call 911 or go to an emergency room)

- Bleeding, soaking through one pad/hour, or blood clots, the size of an egg or bigger
- Incision that is not healing
- Red or swollen leg, that is painful or warm to touch
- Temperature of 100.4°F or higher
- Headache that does not get better, even after taking medicine, or bad headache with vision changes

Trust
your instincts.
ALWAYS get medical care if you are not feeling well or have questions or concerns.

Tell 911 or your healthcare provider:

"I gave birth on _____ and (Date)
I am having _____."
(Specific warning signs)

These post-birth warning signs can become life-threatening if you don't receive medical care right away because:

- Pain in chest, obstructed breathing or shortness of breath (trouble catching your breath) may mean you have a blood clot in your lung or a heart problem
- Seizures may mean you have a condition called eclampsia
- Thoughts or feelings of wanting to hurt yourself or someone else may mean you have postpartum depression
- Bleeding (heavy), soaking more than one pad in an hour or passing an egg-sized clot or bigger may mean you have an obstetric hemorrhage
- Incision that is not healing, increased redness or any pus from episiotomy or C-section site may mean you have an infection
- Redness, swelling, warmth, or pain in the calf area of your leg may mean you have a blood clot
- Temperature of 100.4°F or higher, bad smelling vaginal blood or discharge may mean you have an infection
- Headache (very painful), vision changes, or pain in the upper right area of your belly may mean you have high blood pressure or post birth preeclampsia

Postpartum – The First 6 Weeks

The weeks following your baby's arrival are special and exciting. However, it can be very busy, and you may feel extra tired. It can be helpful to be prepared before you give birth!

ESSENTIAL ITEMS	WHAT TO EXPECT
<input type="checkbox"/> Pads	You will have vaginal bleeding and discharge after birth, which usually stops by 6 weeks postpartum.
<input type="checkbox"/> Water Bottle	It's important to stay hydrated and you may feel extra thirsty if you are breastfeeding.
<input type="checkbox"/> Healthy Snacks	Nutritious food you can eat with one hand may be helpful if you are holding a baby and you may find you have an increased appetite if you are breastfeeding.
<input type="checkbox"/> Comfortable clothes	It takes time for your uterus to shrink back to its pre-pregnancy size.
<input type="checkbox"/> Medicines	Your health care provider may prescribe some before you leave the hospital or recommend some you can get over the counter, such as a stool softener or pain medicine.
<input type="checkbox"/> Nipple Cream (if breastfeeding)	Your nipples may be sore from breastfeeding.
<input type="checkbox"/> Nursing Pads (if breastfeeding)	You may leak breastmilk.

4th Trimester

The first 12 weeks of your baby's life is considered the "4th Trimester". This is when babies are adjusting to life outside the womb and mothers begin recovery.

Did you know?

In many cultures there is 30-40 days of complete rest for moms, where family members help cook and clean so mom can focus on feeding and caring for her baby.

How will you ask loved ones for help during your 4th trimester?

Postpartum – The First 6 Weeks

At around 6 weeks postpartum, your health care provider will want you to come in for a checkup. Some providers may want to see you as soon as 3 weeks postpartum.

After your 6-week postpartum checkup, it is recommended to return to your health care provider in 1 year, or sooner if needed. Baby will continue to have regular checkups throughout the first 2 years of their life.

Postpartum Checkup - Provider Checklist:

- How your body is recovering physically?
- The level of your appetite and hydration status
- When returning to exercise and resuming sex is appropriate for you
- Prescribing or inserting the birth control method you would like to use
- Breast care if you are breastfeeding
- How you are feeling emotionally?

After You Go Home

Find these words in the puzzle:

BLEEDING

- You will have some BLEEDING and vaginal discharge. It will last a few weeks.
- You might leak some URINE. Mostly when you laugh, cough or sneeze. Strengthening the muscles will stop the leaking. Your nurse can explain some ways to strengthen these muscles.
- You may SWEAT more than usual. Your body is getting rid of extra fluids.
- You may be SORE all over from giving birth.
- You might get CONSTIPATED.
- You could have GAS and bloating.
- Your breasts may be ENGORGED with milk.
- Your NIPPLES could be sore from breastfeeding.
- You might be very EMOTIONAL. You could be happy, stressed, let down, weepy, worn out or more.

Baby Blues

“I have a beautiful new baby and I feel _____.”

After your baby is born, you may feel like you are on an emotional rollercoaster. One minute you are so happy with your new baby! The next you are tearful and don't know why. This is common and normal for new parents. It is called the “baby blues.”

Baby blues may be caused by hormone changes. Changes in your sleep patterns are also a factor. Baby blues can come because it is a lot of work caring for a new baby. There is a lot to learn. There are many decisions to make.

The baby blues usually go away after the first week or so. The best help is the love and support of family and friends.

A week or so after your baby is born, you may feel:

- Tired
- Moody
- Tense
- Tearful
- Grouchy
- Restless
- Anxious
- Angry
- Confused
- Sadness
- Impatient
- Upset

Call your health care provider right away if:

- Your baby blues last more than 2 weeks.
- Your feelings are getting more intense.
- Your feelings make it hard to care for yourself or your baby. It is hard to get along with others.

Postpartum Depression (PPD)

Postpartum Depression (PPD) is a medical issue that happens to some women after baby is born. It usually involves feelings of intense sadness, worry, and fatigue that may disrupt your ability to take care of the things you need to day-to-day and impact the care of your baby.

When "depression" doesn't quite describe how you're feeling...

The term "postpartum depression" is used most often. However, there are several kinds of mood disorders women may experience, including:

Postpartum Anxiety

Postpartum Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder

Postpartum Post Traumatic Stress Disorder and others.

Your nurse and health care provider can help connect you with the support you need to feel like yourself again!

SYMPTOMS OF POSTPARTUM DEPRESSION
Emotional	Physical	Behavioral
<input type="checkbox"/> Feeling sad or crying a lot	<input type="checkbox"/> Not sleeping enough or sleeping too much	<input type="checkbox"/> Trouble bonding with your baby
<input type="checkbox"/> Feeling irritable or angry	<input type="checkbox"/> Changes in appetite	<input type="checkbox"/> Avoiding family or friends
<input type="checkbox"/> Feeling guilt, shame, or like a failure	<input type="checkbox"/> Difficulty focusing or concentrating	<input type="checkbox"/> Less interest in doing things you used to enjoy
<input type="checkbox"/> Feeling persistent doubt that you can care for your baby	<input type="checkbox"/> Body aches or pains	<input type="checkbox"/> Thoughts of hurting yourself or your baby

Call your health care provider if you experience any of these symptoms.

*If you have thoughts about hurting yourself or your baby and can't immediately reach your health care provider, put your baby in a safe place and call 9-1-1.

Postpartum Depression is never your fault and you are not alone!
Seek help early. You can feel better with help and support.

An Emotional Rollercoaster

After your baby is born, you may feel like you're on an emotional rollercoaster. One minute you're so happy about your new baby! The next you're sad and you don't know why. Later you might be angry, or sad, or happy again. What's going on?

What emotions have you felt since your baby was born?

ASK FOR HELP

HOW TO

Understand and accept that you are worthy and that asking for help is a sign of strength

STEP 1

Gently set aside feelings of shame, embarrassment, or feeling out of control. Focus on moving forward through the fear and finding resilience

STEP 2

Believe that you will not always feel this way

STEP 3

Find a safe person. Someone who listens, loves, and does not judge. Connection heals

STEP 4

Find a reliable, trusted professional who can guide
you to essential resources

STEP 5

If you feel you have not been heard, ask someone else. Do not stop until you find the support you need to feel better

STEP 6

A cactus symbolizes endurance, strength, and the ability to thrive under harsh conditions.

How to “Dry Up” a Milk Supply

There are many reasons why a mother may not breastfeed, including choice, health concerns, or infant loss. Regardless, a woman's body will begin to produce more milk approximately 48-72 hours after birth. There are several ways to reduce the discomfort of engorgement and assist with reduction or “drying up” the milk supply.

Many of our grandmothers were told to buy an elastic bandage and simply “bind the breasts”, deal with the pain and in a few days, it would be gone. Some of these women were also given the “dry up shot”. We now know that binding of the breasts can lead to a breast infection (mastitis) and the injection of bromocriptine can cause other serious health problems.

The current recommendations include:

- Avoid nipple stimulation
- Wear a comfortable (but not tight) bra
- Apply ice to breasts. A bag of frozen vegetables (peas or lima beans) will mold well to the breasts and ease discomfort.
- Apply raw cabbage leaves to breasts. Take a few leaves from the head of cabbage, squeeze slightly in hand to “get the juices flowing” and apply directly to breast. After 45 minutes or when the leaves wilt, apply fresh leaves.
- Use ibuprofen for pain as recommended by your health care provider.
- Discuss with your health care provider the use of antihistamines or decongestant. For example, 60-120mg of pseudoephedrine every 4-6 hours as needed may help reduce milk supply.
- Consider drinking 1-4 cups of sage tea per day.
- Peppermint oil has been anecdotally (word of mouth) shown to reduce milk production. Specifically, peppermint Altoids. Either suck or swallow them.
- If breasts are severely engorged and the above techniques are not helpful, consider hand expressing a few drops to relieve the pressure in the breast. The milk can be given to the baby.
- If abrupt weaning is a medical necessity for the health and safety of the mother, discuss with your doctor the possibility of taking cabergoline.

Resources

LactationTraining.com

If you have a fever over 101°F (38.3°C), pain and/or redness in a specific area of the breast, feel like you are coming down with the flu, it could be a sign of breast or other infection. It may be temporarily necessary to remove a majority of the milk from the breasts by hand expression or pumping to help the infection clear, along with the use of antibiotics. Contact your primary care provider.

Baby Poop: What's Normal and What's Not?

Normal Baby Poop

When you start to change your newborn baby's diapers, you might have questions about the contents inside. You will see a full range of "normal" baby poop types that lets you know that your baby is healthy and growing well. Other terms for poop include bowel movements, stools, and feces.

How often a baby poops can vary greatly. Babies that drink formula tend to have bowel movements every day or almost every day. Babies drinking breast milk have frequent bowel movements the first 4-6 weeks then can go up to a week between bowel movements.

Baby Poop: What's Normal and What's Not?
